History

Founded in 1932, St. Dunstan's Theatre Guild of Cranbrook is an independent, non-profit organization committed to producing quality theatre in our community. Not coincidentally, we're named for St. Dunstan, patron saint of the arts - a legacy carried on through the loyal support of our members and audiences. Every member of St. Dunstan's is a volunteer. Onstage and off, we all share a love of theatre and a commitment to our "home away from home."

The Greek

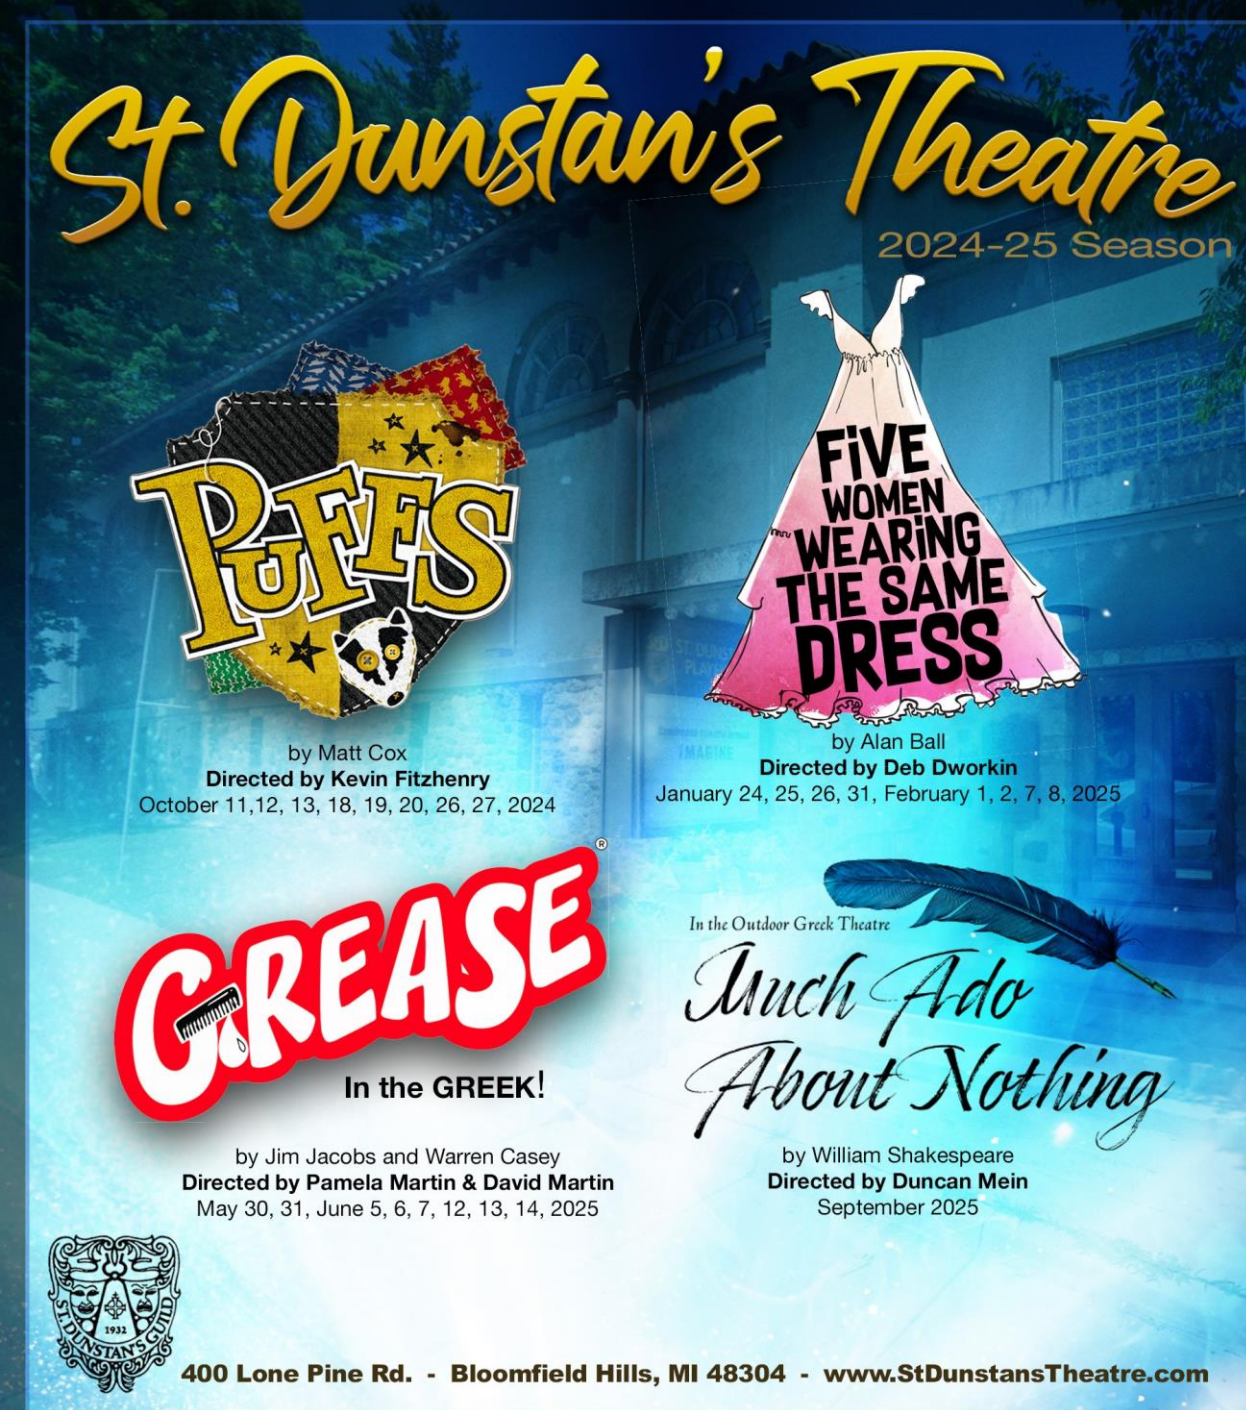

The Greek Theatre was the first of many buildings commissioned by George and Ellen Booth at Cranbrook for the general public. As such, it was the harbinger of the great cultural and educational center that the founders created on these grounds. Their love of architecture, theatre, and public service combined to create Cranbrook's Greek Theatre.

It opened in the autumn of 1916, seven years before the establishment of Brookside School, the oldest Cranbrook educational institution. An annual performance is held in the Greek Theatre every May/June by St. Dunstan's Theatre.

The poster for St. Dunstan's Theatre 2024-25 Season features a blue background with a faint image of the theatre building. At the top, the title "St. Dunstan's Theatre" is written in a large, yellow, cursive font, with "2024-25 Season" in a smaller, yellow, sans-serif font below it. The poster is divided into four quadrants, each featuring a different show. Top-left: "Puffs" in a yellow, stylized font with a patchwork background. Top-right: "FIVE WOMEN WEARING THE SAME DRESS" in a black, stylized font with a pink dress illustration. Bottom-left: "GREASE" in a large, red, stylized font with a comb illustration. Bottom-right: "Much Ado About Nothing" in a black, cursive font with a feather illustration. Each show listing includes the director's name and the performance dates. At the bottom left is the St. Dunstan's Guild logo, and at the bottom right is the address and website.
